

CHRISTINA ZERTUCHE WONG

Cristina (Cris) is a Managing Director at Goldman Sachs. She serves as chief operating officer for the US real estate business within Asset Management Alternatives Investing. She joined the firm in 2010.

Prior to this role, Cris was the COO for the Realty Management Division, leading business operations for real estate asset management in the Americas. She also served as chief of staff for the Goldman Sachs Dallas office, working closely with senior leadership on key strategic initiatives to support the growth of the firm's real estate investing platform and expanding the firm's footprint in Dallas. Cris served on the global leadership team, as co-executive sponsor of the Dallas Women's Network, and as co-executive sponsor of the Dallas Hispanic / Latino network. She actively led and supported the firm's mentoring, DEI and community outreach efforts.

Before joining Goldman Sachs, Cris served as Assistant Vice President of Internal Communications and Workforce Diversity at DFW International Airport for almost 10 years. She and her team led in the development and execution of internal communication, particularly after the tragic 911 events. She helped shape DEI strategies, working closely with senior leadership and all major stakeholders who operated at DFW Airport.

Prior to DFW Airport, Cris' career took her to Mexico where she joined Altos Hornos de Mexico (AHMSA), Mexico's largest integrated steel company. She served as manager of international media and investor relations. She was actively involved in the planning of AHMA's IPO and NYSE listing.

Early in her career, Cris served as Director of Public Relations and Community Affairs for the Dallas Symphony Orchestra (DSO), leading public relations initiatives and outreach programs to bring classical music to young students and diverse communities. She also served as Director of Marketing and Public Affairs for Fair Park, a state and national historic landmark located in south Dallas.

Cris is highly engaged in the Dallas community. She is a Chair-Elect of the Texas Women's Foundation, serves on the Advisory Council of The Concilio, Dallas' largest Hispanic community-based social services provider and co-founded the DFW Hispanic 100 Latina Giving Circle, a donor advised fund at the Texas' Women's foundation. She is a passionate advocate for the North Central Texas Alzheimer's Association and actively supported National Charity League, a philanthropic organization of mothers and daughters.

Cris graduated from the University of Texas at Austin with a B.S. in Communication and serves as on the UT McCombs School of Business Parents Council. She recently completed her certification from Harvard Business School for Women on Corporate. Boards.

She and her husband, Julio, have two daughters, Sara and Abby.
